last Saturday. Vegetables of all kinds continue dull and weak. Killing frosts have been withheld two weeks beyond the average time of appearance and tomatoes are unhurt. Turnips, carrots, onlons, cabbage and beets, pumpkins are a drug in the market and up the Allegheny Valley the pumpkin crop is reported to be the largest on record.

Potatoes have been in light supply all week, particularly choice stock. It has been next to impossible to get a good article of potatoes in our market for several days. The commission houses are bare of stock. Large quantities have been condemned in the railroad yards because of dry rot, and many shippers have not been able to get enough to pay freight bills. Full supplies from Michigan are on the way. Our home raised potatoes are not only small in size but few in the hill. The looked-for rise in grapes did not appear and they are plenty and cheap as ever. The first of the Catawba crop was received within a few days and markets will be well stocked in this line for a few weeks. At one commission house it was learned that a carload of grapes was sold every day of the week. The first of the new Florida orange crop arrived within a day or two. Quality is very fine and demand good at $5 per box. In the lines of dairy products we notice an increasing firmness as to New York cheese and fancy creamery butter. Ohio cheese is unchanged and low grade creamery butter is slow. There has been an improvement in demand for country butter since the beginning of the week and prices are somewhat higher. by good gospel music, and the round planet will all be taken for God. Not a wall of opposition, not a throne of tyranny, not a palace of sin, not an enterprise of unright-cousness could stand the mighty throb of such atmospheric pulsation. Music! It sounded at the laying of creation's corner-stone when the morning stars sang together. Music! It will be the last reverberation, when the archangel's trumpet shall wake the dead. Music! Let its full power be now tested to comfort and bless and arouse and save.

While our evening meal is being prepared in the tents, we walk out for a moment to the "Fountain of Elisha," the one into which the prophet threw the salt, because the waters were poisonous and bitter, and lo! they became sweet and healthy; and ever since, with gurgle and laughter, they have rushed down the hill, and leaped from the rocks, the only cheerful object in all that region being these waters.

Now on this plain of Jericho the sun is setting, making the mountains look like balustrades and battlements of amber and maroon and gold: and the moon, just above the crests, seems to be a window of heaven through which immortals might be looking down upon the scene. Three Arabs as watchmen sit beside the campfire at the doo: of my tent, their low conversation in a strange languag all night long a soothing rather than an interruption. I agreed on lower priced hams, shoulders and lard. The wholesale grocery trade has been quiet for the week past and volume of business lighter than usual. The fact is due in a measure to wet and bad roads. There has been no essential change in prices. It is not often that sugar continues so long without change as has been the case the past few weeks. Teas are not so active of late, but prices continue firm.

Hides and calf skins have declined from 14 to 14c per pound the past week. Prices of light hides are now only 2c per pound above the lo est point touched a year ago. The declining market appears when quality is at its best for the year. The lastmonth and the coming month cattle are in good shape, and the hides are clean and plump, and hence are most desirable. In spite of this the situation is in favor of the bnuer all along the line. The greatest decline has been in buff hides and calf skins. Heavy hides have, however, joined in the downward movement, and are 14c lower than last Saturday. than last Saturday,

And some one told me that as these walls in Joshua's time, at the sounding trumpets of doom went down, now at the sounding trumpet of the gospel they come up again. And I thought a man appeared at the door of my tent, and I said: "Who are you and from whence have you come?" and he said, "I am the Samaritan you heard of at the tavern on the road from Jerusalem to Jericho, as taking care of the man who fell among thieves, and I have just come from healing the last wound of the last unfortunate in all the earth." Some important buyers from the Northwest were in the market, looking to purchase for shipment by water routes before close of navigation, and business of that character promises to become more active. But the temper of the street is so completely changed that notwithstanding a loss in the reserves of over $3,000,000 and the complete wiping out of the surplus, the market to-day was strong from start to finish, closing with material gains in many stocks.

The upward movement received also little, if any, aid from outside sources, the foreign purchases being insignificant, but the confidence which has so lately been developed was most noticeable, and all offerings were absorbed at advancing figures. The traders were inclined to discount the bank statement at the opening, which was made on a very quiet business at irregular changes from last night's figures, with a majority of losses, which, however, were to-day was strong from start to finish, closing with a majority of losses, which, however, were for slight fractions only. Later there was a partial reaction, but the advance was soon resumed, and the bank statement, when issued, had no more than a passing influence upon the course of quotations. The advances are very uniform in the active stocks, but the pronounced movement was in Citizens Gas, of Brooklyn, which, after retiring to 97, rose to 100%, closing at a 100, a gain of 2 per cent for the day. A Description of the Scene of the Savior's Famous Story.

paign, visited us here at Hawarden and, walking in this park where we are now walking, he told me a very beautiful incident. He said; 'After the war in Africa was over, we were on the march and we had a soldier with a broken leg who was not strong enough to go along with us and we did not dare to leave him to be taken care of by savages, but we found we were compelled to leave him and we went into the house of a woman who was said to be a very kind woman, though of the race of savages, and we said: "Here is a sick man, and if you will take care of him till he gets well we will pay you very largely," and then we offered her five times that which would ordinarily be offered, nophus by the excess of pay to secure for him great kindness. The woman replied: "I will not take care of him for the sake of the love of God.""

Mr. Gladstone turned to me and said: "Dr.

of God."

Mr. Gladstone turned to me and said: "Dr. calmare, don't you think that though she beinged to a race of savages, that was pure regions". And I answered: "I do I do." May so multiply all the world over the number of cool Samaguarians."

But our procession of sight-seers is again in ne, and here we pass through a deep ravine, nd I cry to the dragoman: "David, what place to you call this." and be replied: "This is the rook Cherith, where Elijah was fed by the ravens." And in that answer he overthrew my lite-long notions of the place where Elijah was waited on by the black servants of the sky. A brook to me had meant a slight depression of ground, and a stream fordable, and perhaps 15 feet wide. But here was a chasm that an earthquake must have scooped out with its hierard showed or apply with its miertiest battle.

earthquake must have scooped out with its biggest shovel or spirt with its mightiest battleaxe. Six hundred feet deep is it, and the brook Cherith is a river, which, when in full lorce, is a silver wedge, splitting the mountains into precipices. The feathered descendants of Elijah's ravens still wing their way across this ravine, but are not like the crows we supposed them to be. They are as large as eagles, and one of them could carry in its beak and clinched claw at once enough food for a half-dozen Elijahs.

MORE EMPHASIS ON MUSIC. Seated by the warmth of our camp-fires that evening of December 6, amid the bricks and debris of Jericho, and thinking what poor music has done and what mightier things could be accomplished by the blessings of God on good music. I said to myself: Ministers have been doing a grand work, and sermons have been blessed, but would it not be well for us to put more emphasis on music? Oh, for a cam-paign of Old Hundred! Oh, for a brigade of the campfire at the door of my tent, their low conversation in a strange language all night long a soothing rather than an interruption. I had a dream that night never to be forgotten, that dream amid the complete ruins of Jericho. Its past grandeur returned, and I saw the city as it was when Mark Antony gave it to Cleopatra and Herod bought it from her. And I heard the hoofs of its swift steeds, and the rumbling of its chariots and the shouts of excited spectators in its amphitheater.

A REALISTIC DREAM.

"A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho," Dr. Tallmage said:
It is the morning of December 5, in Jerusalem and we take stirrups for the road along which the waylarer of old fell among thieves who left him wounded and half dead. Job's picture of the horse in the Orient as having neck "elathed with thunder" is not true of most horses now in Palestine. There is no thunder on their neck, though there is some lightning in their heels. Poorly fed and unmercifully whacked, they sometimes retort. To Americans and English, who are accustomed to guide horses by the bridle, these horses of the Orient, guided only by foot and voice, make equestriantsm an uncertainty, and the pull on the Orient, guided only by loot and voice, make equestrianism an amorptainty, and the pull on the bridle that you intend for slowing up of the pane may be mistaken for a bint that you want to out-gallop the wind or wheel in swift circles like the lawk.

We encamped for lunch at noon close by an old stone building, said be the tavern where the scere spoken of in a billide culminated. Tumbling in the dust a glassity with wounds, the victim of this chway robbery lay in the middle of the road—

And one of these ministers of religion, I ppose, was on his way to the temple rvice and he is startled as he sees this bleedg victim in the middle of the road. "On," c says, "here is a man that has been attacked a thieves, "Why don't you go home?" says is minister. ceptable to God than all the incense that will smoke up from your ceaser for the next three weeks and you missed the chance. Go on your way! Execrated by the centuries.

TOO BUSY FOR MERCY.

Soon afterward a Levite came upon the scene. The Levites looked after the missic of the temple and waited upon the priests and accration in the middle of the road, "My! no?" says the Levite, "this man is awfully burt and he ought to be helped. But my business is a sing in the chair at the temple. If I am not no one will carry my part. Hes there no one will carry my part. Beside that, there may not be enough frankincouse for the consers and the wine or oil may have given out, and what a fearful balk in the service that would make. Then one of the priests might get his breast-plate on crooked. But it seems too bad to leave this man in this condition. Perhaps I had better try to stranch this blegging and give him a little.

man in this condition. Perhaps I had better try to stanch this bleeding and give him a little simulant. But, no! The ceremony at Jerusalem is of more importance than taking care of the wounds of a man who will probably soon be dead, anyhow. This highway robbery ought to be stopped, for it hinders us Levites on our way up to the temple. There, I have lost five minutes already! Go along, you beast? he shouts, as he strikes his heels into the sides of the animal carrying him, and the dust rising from the road soon hides the heard-hearted official. But a third person is coming along this road. You cannot expect him to do anything by way of alleviation, necause he and the wounded man belong to different nations which have absommated each other for centuries. The wounded man is an Israelite, and the stranger now coming on this scene of suffering is a Samartian. They belong to nations which hated each other with a objurgation and male diction diabelic. They had opposition temples, one on hount Gerizim and the other on Mount Moriah, and I guess this Samaritan when he comes up will give the fallen Israelite another cip and say: "Good for you! I will just finish comes up will give the fallen Israelite another clip and say: "Good for you! I will just finish the work these bandits began, and give you one more kick that will put you out of your misery. And here is a rag of your cout that they did not steal, and I will take that. What! Po you dare to appeal to me for wercy? Hush up! Why, your ancestors wor-hipped at Jeru-alem when they ought to have worshipped at Geriam. Now take that! And that! And that!" The Republican mass meeting in Southwill say the Samaritan as he pounds the fallen Israelite.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN. No: the Samaritan rides up to the scene of suffering, gets of the beast and steps down and looks into the face of the wounded man and says: This poor fellow does not belong to my says: This poor fellow does not belong to my nation, and our ancestors worshipped in different places, but he is a man, and that makes us brothers. God pity him, as I do? And he gets down on his knees and begins to examine his wounds, and straightened out his limbs to see if any of his bones are broken, and says: "My dear fellow, cheer up, you need have no more care about yourself, for I am going to take care of you. Let me feel of your juise! Let me listen to you breathing! I have in these bottles two liquids that will selp you. The one is oil, and that will soothe the pain of these wounds and the other is wine, and your puise is feeble and you feel faint, and that will stimula e you. Now I must get you to the nearest tavern." Now I must get you to the hearest tavern."

"Oh, no;" says the man, "I can't walk; let me stay here and die." Nonsense!" says the Samaritan, "You are not g sing to die. I am geneg to put you on this beast, and I will hold Il I get you to a place where you can have a soft matriess and an easy pillow."

Now the Samaritan has got the wounded man on his feet, and with much tugging and lifting past him on the beast, for it is a-tonishing how strong the spirit of kindness will make one, as you have seen a mother after three weeks of sleepiess watching of her boy, down with scarlet lever lift that half-grown boy, beavier than herself, from cough to language. cif. from couch to lounge. And so this pathetic Samaritan mas, unaided, put the mided man in the saddle, and at slow pace sympathetic Samaritan mas, unaided, put the wounded man in he saudie, and at slow pace the extemporized ambulance is moving toward the tavern. "You feel better now, I think," says the Samaritan to the Hebrew. "Yes," he says, "I do feel better," "Halloo, you landlord! help me carry this man in and make him comfortable." That night the Samaritan sat up with the Jew, giving him water whenever he felt thirsty and turning his pillow when it got hot, and in the morning before the Samaritan started on his journey he said, "Landlord, now I am obliged to go. Take good care of this man and I will be along here soon again and pay you for all you do for him. Meanwhile, here is something to meet present expenses." The "two pence" he gave the landlord sounds small, but it was as nuch as $10 here, and now.

A TALK WITH GLADSTONE. one day last January moved to St. Paul's Cathedral at the burial of that Christian here, Lord Napier. The day after at Hawarden, in conversation on various themes, I asked Mr. Gladstone if be did not think that many who were under the shadow of false religious might not nevertheless be at heart really Christians. Mr. Gladstone replied: "Yes; my old
